Teaching Anatomy at the University of Melbourne
in the Nineteenth Century

Dr Ross Jones

To celebrate the release of a new history of the Department of Anatomy at the University of Melbourne, Dr Ross Jones will present a seminar on cadavers and cadaver culture.

The story of the Nineteenth-Century Department of Anatomy reveals an assortment of colourful characters and enterprising medical practices. It is theatre—with heroes and villains, valour and pettiness, drama and intrigue—that illuminates an often unspoken aspect of life and work at the University.

Dr Jones is a Senior Fellow, Department of Anatomy and Cell Biology, teaching in the History and Philosophy of Science program.

1–2pm, Wednesday, 24 October 2007

Leigh Scott Room, First Floor, Baillieu Library

The History of the University Unit is funded through the Office of the Vice-Chancellor and based at the Australia Centre
